Charles Rec Chases One of Them Female Counterfeiters Turn a Krombach's Supporters Early at Through the Streets.

He Was Armed with a Revolver and Got Arrested.

Policeman Thompson, of the Hamilton The First Taken Back to Jail, the avenue station, Brooklyn, heard a pistol shot at 1 o'clock this morning and saw a man running through Conover stree followed by another man who was only partly dressed.

The pursuer carried a revolver in his hand and yelled lustly for the police. The fugitive got away and Thompson arrested the man with the was claim to the man with the was Charles Rec, forty years old, of 157 Conover street.

Rec said he reached home shortly before midnight, and was 'ust dozing off to sleep when he heard somebody moving around in his room. Two men stood over him, and as he rose up from his bed one of them, he says, dealt him a stinging blew in the face. They then left his room and ran away, and Rec, according to his own story, grabbed a revolver and followed.

Later on the police arrested John Callahan, twenty-three years old, of its Conover street, on suspicion of being one of the burglars. Callahan declared, however, that he had been in the company of David Rose, of 146 Conover street, and had just left a saloon at 149. Rose was also arrested, but as Rec was unable to identify either of them, they were not held.

this morning by Justice Tighe, in the Butler Street Police Court, for examination on March 8, charged with shooting a fellow-countryman, Luigi Giuseppi, of il Carroll street, in the neck.

Giuseppi is in the Long Island College Hospital, unconscious, and the doctors say he may die.

Sorrendo was sitting on a box in Frederick Sigo's grocery, at 15 Carroll street, last night, when Giuseppi entered with an axe in his hand. He waived the weapon over his head and exclaimed: "I want blood. Somebody is going to get killed; I don't care who—so look out."

As he spoke he brought the axe down on the figor near the place where Sorrendo was sitting. As he lifted the axe again to deal another blow, Sorrendo drew a 32 calibre revolver and fired. Giuseppi fell to the floor.

Sorrendo dropped his revolver and ran out of the store. He was captured a block away. block away.

He says Gluseppi was either drunk or crazy, and he fired the shot to save his own life.

HOBLEY'S LAST WHISKEY.

Hayes, Who Bet with Him, and Two Others Held.

As a result of a Coroner's inques Williamsburg last night Frederick Mertz, Michael Hayes and Charles Oberst were all held to await the action Oberst were all held to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of mansiaughter. Mertz and Oberst furnished $5,000 bail. Hayes was not so fortunate, and is now in Raymond Street Jail.

About three weeks ago William Hobley, of 156 South Eighth street, was in Mertz's saloon, 100 South Eighth street, where Hayes bet him 25 cents that he could not drink a pint of whiskey. The man drank it down and then drank another half pint. Then he wandered outdoors, stumbled into a hallway and a few hours later was found there dead. The Coroner's physician who made the autopsy testified that Hobley died of drink and exposure. The three men were all held responsible for his death, Hayes because he made the bet, Oberst because he soid the liquor and Mertz because the bet was made in his saloon and he stood by while the unfortunate man was drinking.

Garlando was taken with a fit of hysteria.

Jumping into the middle of the room, she let out a shriek which made the windows rattle, and then began tearing the clothes from her body.

The attaches of the office attempted to restrain her, but she fought them off and it was not until they closed around her that she was reduced to submission.

Mrs. Lebarboa, who had witnessed the scene, grew very excited, and finally rolled off her chair onto the floor. She had been attacked with epilepsy.

The officers tried to resuscitate her, but without success, An ambulance was called, and Surgeon Shattuck, who responded, had great difficulty in reviving her. He declared she was a very sick woman and removed her to the City Hospital.

The younger prisoner was taken back to Raymond Street Jail.

Her father always took this avowal of love as a joke.

When the steamer on which Nolte worked had tied up at her pier two weeks ago, Nolte went to board at the comfortable home of the Freunds. He seemed more attentive than usual to Clara, and flourished a large roll of greenbacks now and then, saying he had enough to buy a house and lot.

Clara was employed by Janitor William Busch, of Public School No. 76, to help him clean the school building on Wyona street, near Arlington avenue, every Saturday. Sales were made at all sorts of figures simultaneously, and the prices slumped to 91 almost as rapidly as it had gone up. Still later there was a rally to 95-34.

The dealings were on an enormous scale, and the buils were wild with glee at this, their first really successful move against the shorts in months.

There were a good many theories as to the operators who had been caught. That they include Washington as well as New York speculators goes almost without saying. One of the reports was that a leading bear had settled privately at par on a line of 25,000 shares.

Naturally the bears in other stocks were frightened, and under their purchases as general advance ensued.

Chicago Gas rose 1-3-8 to 55-8. St. Paul 5-8 to 17-8. Rock Island 5-8 to 70-1-8, Distillers 11-8 to 25-7-8, Burlington & Quincy 7-8 to 79-7-8, Western Union 11-4 to 81-2. After the culmination of the excitement in Sugar the brokers were disposed to sell the list, having regarded the feverish fluctuations in that stock as unhealthy.

Under moderate sales prices reacted 1-4 to 1 3-8 per cent., the greatest declines having been in Chicago Gas, Louisville and Electric.

Sugar moved up and down frequently, but hte dealings were on a greatly reduced scale. A prominent Broadway house took 20,000 shares early inthe day, but the rise to par was mainly due to the bungling way in which an order for 5,000 shares was executed by an inexperienced broker.

When he started in to bid, several brokers in the crowd saw at once what he was after, and with fearful results to his client. In other words, he got his first hundred at 93, and was forced to pay 99 up to 100 for his last lots.

It is claimed by the bulls that the Sugar Trust has accomplished at Washington all it set out to do, and will continue to make big dividends at the expense of the consumers. The early rise in Chicago Gas to 66 was on the announcement that the Evereutive Commit. tinue to make big dividends at the expense of the consumers. The early rise in Chicago Gas to 66 was on the announcement that the Executive Committee had declared the regular dividend of 1-2 per cent, in cash.

In nearly responsibility in the premises. In nearly every case these attempts of the padrone to square things failed.

It is believed that under a misapprehension of facts the widow of Joseph Franghino, who was among the killed, signed a release from further claim on the Company and contractors for $20. She was given that amount to pay for her husband's funeral expenses.

Later she was informed she had signed a full release of all claims against the Company. The widow rebelled, and Francholino, the padrone, went to her with an offer of $400. She declined to treat with him, and her case is now in Mator Cochran's hands.

That lawyer will endeavor to have that receipt set aside and regarded as valueless, so far as releasing any claims are concerned. He will argue that it was obtained by fraud.

It is common talk in the Italian colony that Francholino has fied to escape the consequences of his attempts to subsidize the poor victims.

A peculiar fact in connection with this affair is that the old structure in Fairview has been torn down and is being rebuilt, but not in the old way. There will be no trestle when the new work annears. The contractors are filling in the land from the creek up, so that it will not be necessary to have a trestle. So far as the responsibility for the accident goes is a point of law. The Coroner's jury's verdict was to the effect that "the trestle was unsafe for the purposes for which it was used, and we lay the entire responsibility for the collapse on Broadhead & Hickey."

Crewe, he testified, secured the money from him by representing he had $4,000 worth of diamonds pledged.

Stevens's testimony was to the effect that he lived with Crewe at 25 West-Forty-second street. Crewe was ill and without money. Stevens purchased his furniture and then installed a woman named Burling in the house to watch it. Miss Burling, he said, received no payfor her work.

Stevens also stated that when he went to pay the $66,50 at the office of Ellen S. Murray, in the Lincoln Building, he happened to mention the diamonds. preferred by Mayor Daly against Chief of Police Crane, for neglect of duty, and Patrolman Geise, for brutally clubbing a prisoner.

It was charged that Crane was guilty of extreme neglect of duty in allowing a person to escape when it was easily withing his power to arrest him. The second specification alleged that he frequented saloons, to the detriment of the service.

ing, he happened to mention the diamonds.

Crewe kicked him under the table as a hint to keep quiet.

Miss Murray, a witness for the prosecution, contradicted this testimony by saying that there was no table in her office, and that the money was paid to her on a note that was due.

Crewe took the stand in his own behalf this afternoon. He said that he had several chattel mortgages on his furniture and borrowed the money from Stevens to cancel these loans. He denied that he ever got any money from the complainant on the representation that he had diamonds in pawn.
